

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT:
Scott Chatfield
scott@keneally.com
(760) 753-7111

Mike Keneally's You Must Be This Tall Offers the Ride of a Lifetime

"With his wide-ranging talents and ability to be creative in almost any musical situation, Keneally is the leading progressive rock genius of the post-Zappa era." – Bill Meredith, All Music Guide

Unlike the sort of amusement park thrill ride evoked by the title of Mike Keneally's new album, there is no specific height requirement for hearing You Must Be This Tall; a healthy sense of adventure and a taste for the unexpected will serve the listener well, though, as Keneally's 24th solo release is as action-packed and thrill-a-minute as any rock album (or roller coaster) within memory.

Keneally's a startlingly versatile artist, having first come to prominence as a member of Frank Zappa's 1988 band, and he can currently be found touring alternately as a member of [adult swim]-spawned metal act Dethklok, and as both keyboardist and guitarist with Joe Satriani. But while his adaptability and wide-ranging musical interests make him an invaluable addition to these and many other musical environments, it's as bandleader, producer and composer/performer/vocalist that his talents reach their highest fruition. You Must Be This Tall provides an expansive platform for these talents; relatively compact (12 songs in 44 minutes) but covering a huge swath of stylistic ground.

A feeling of fearlessness pervades You Must Be This Tall – a willingness to pursue any musical idea to its fullest extent. But this uncompromising stance is approached with verve and humor - the album jumps with life.

Four of the new songs began as very short musical ideas – a rhythm pattern, or a snatch of lyric or melody, not lasting more than a few seconds – that Keneally sang or played into his cell phone while on the road with Satriani or Dethklok. After returning from touring, he set himself a challenge: go into the recording studio for four days and create four completed song structures based on these voice memos, one song per day. By the end of the week, full basic tracks were recorded for "The Rider," a sweeping classic-rock anthem; "Kidzapunk," a manic, chaotic theme song for a movie that doesn't exist; "Cavanaugh," a moody, proggy character study; and "Pitch Pipe," an epic instrumental with guitar to the forefront. Except for Marco Minnemann's virtuosic drumming on "Kidzapunk" and a few soulful guitar interjections from Rick Musallam on "The Rider," these four songs feature Keneally playing all instruments, manually (except for some electronic percussion programming on a couple of tracks, all the playing on this album was done in real time by human hands).

Following up on last year's Wing Beat Fantastic – Songs Written by Mike Keneally & Andy Partridge (a product of the storied songwriting meet-up between Keneally and legendary XTC leader Partridge), this new album includes "Indicator," the last remaining song to date from Mike and Andy's collaborations, an angular track somewhat influenced by Captain Beefheart and featuring Partridge and Keneally together on multiple guitar overdubs.

The title track began as a demo for a piece to be performed by Holland's venerable Metropole Orkest; the orchestra debuted the piece in concert in 2006, but this album contains Mike's first released version of this whimsical, propulsive and wildly inventive composition. Here Mike uses layers of keyboard to replicate the sounds of the orchestra but retaining the unreal, surrealistic feel of the synthesizer, backing up a bravura lead guitar turn.

The other members of Keneally touring band – Bryan Beller (Dethklok, The Aristocrats) on bass, Joe Travers (Zappa Plays Zappa, Duran Duran) on drums, and Rick Musallam (Ben Taylor, The Roots) on guitar – join Mike for "Cornbread Crumb" and "Popes," two relaxed, joyful celebrations of groove and texture. "Cornbread" features perhaps Keneally's best recorded lead guitar playing to date, and the slyly humorous "Popes" is the album's lead video, with playful, colorful animation from Bulgarian filmmaker Dimitriya (<http://dimitriya.net>).

Keneally's experimentalist bent takes precedence on the final two pieces, "5th St." and "Glop," both of which have improvisational origins. "5th St." emerged during a live studio webcast wherein Mike was challenged to compose a song on the spot on piano, which was embellished later with guitar overdubs and skittering drum and percussion latticework. "Glop" is based on a searing guitar solo that Keneally recorded at his home; later in the studio, he learned and doubled key melodies from the improvisation on various instruments, a methodology that shows the clear influence of his former employer and mentor Frank Zappa.

A variety of creative online promotions are planned in support of YMBTT and Mike will tour with his band throughout the coming months whenever his other touring commitments allow. Music from this and all other Keneally albums (in addition to several hundred unreleased studio and live recordings) can be heard streaming anytime at www.radiokeneally.com.

The newly re-designed www.keneally.com is launched simultaneously with the new album's release. Keneally and Scott Chatfield (Keneally's manager and CEO of record label Exowax Recordings) first launched www.keneally.com in 1994, proving to be internet pioneers of making content (both free and for purchase) available online, establishing intimate contact with the fanbase, and blogging rampantly long before the word "blog" was coined.

Mike Keneally Album Discography

2013 You Must Be This Tall

2013 Wing Beat Elastic – Remixes, Demos & Unheard Music

2012 Wing Beat Fantastic – Songs Written By Mike Keneally & Andy Partridge

2011 bakin' @ the potato! (Mike Keneally Band)

2010 Evidence of Humanity (Mike Keneally/Marco Minnemann)

2009 Scambot I

2009 Songs and Stories Inspired By Scambot I

2008 Wine And Pickles
2006 Guitar Therapy Live (Mike Keneally Band)
2004 Dog (Mike Keneally Band)
2004 Vai Piano Reductions Vol. 1
2004 The Universe Will Provide (Mike Keneally & The Metropole Orchestra)
2004 Parallel Universe (Mike Keneally & The Metropole Orchestra)
2001 Wooden Smoke
2001 Wooden Smoke Asleep
2000 Dancing (Mike Keneally & Beer For Dolphins)
2000 Dancing With Myself (Mike Keneally & Beer For Dolphins)
1999 Nonkertompf
1998 The Tar Tapes Volume Two
1997 Sluggo! (Mike Keneally & Beer For Dolphins)
1997 The Tar Tapes Volume One
1996 Half Alive In Hollywood (Mike Keneally & Beer For Dolphins)
1994 Boil That Dust Speck
1992 hat.

#####

YOU MUST BE THIS TALL – MIKE KENEALLY
Exowax Recordings EX-2414

Mike's new album debuts August 27, 2013 at www.keneally.com, where much more information can be found.